Adam Blažek, Institute for Nanomaterials, Advanced Technologies and Innovation, TU Liberec

After five years of close collaboration between businesses, academia, and civil society, the Lausitz – Life & Technology innovation alliance demonstrates what becomes possible when technological and social innovation are systematically interconnected.

In the panel discussion “Lusatia's Collective Expertise”, partners from additive manufacturing, the energy sector, and regional development join forces with research institutions and transformation facilitators to reflect on the concrete changes initiated through R&D projects in the region.

The focus lies on pilot applications and new value chains — and on the question of how sustainable structural change can be achieved through start-up support, skills development, and new forms of collaboration.

From 18:00

CLOSING WITH BBQ & PARTY
